

The hermit thought if he took another flower to create a human being, they would have the same origin - flower - so he wanted to create a companion from her own element. The hermit told her, "When you start to menstruate, you should get a piece of cotton soaked with it and give it to me so that I can create a companion out of magic for you."

When it was time that she had her period, she gave it to the hermit as he had told her. The hermit then meditated and created a three-colored cat out of magic, and he gave it to her. He told her that this animal was called Chhama (cat). She loved the cat so much, and she often took it with her like a human being.

The King walked along the path till he arrived at the hermitage and he entered it. The hermit was eating, while Odor Bopha was sitting in front of him. When the King approached the hermitage and she saw him at a glance, she ran into the room. The hermit asked, "Why do you run into the room?" She murmured, "There's a stranger coming in."
